

“A dramatic romance novel cover illustration in the style of classic painted romance book covers. A passionate Spanish couple stands on opposite sides of a massive, jagged earthquake fissure, their faces inches apart, longing in their eyes, yet separated by the destruction between them. The muscular, rugged man has wavy dark hair, a chiseled jawline, and an intense gaze. He wears an open white linen shirt, his toned chest exposed, and his strong arms reaching toward the woman.

The woman has long, flowing dark hair, warm tan skin, and deep brown eyes, wearing a romantic off-the-shoulder red dress with delicate folds. She reaches toward him, but the deep earthquake crack divides them dramatically. The crack is massive, splitting the entire ground apart, glowing faintly with golden-red light. Dust and debris rise from the fissure, adding a sense of destruction and fate pulling them apart.

In the foreground, a majestic red rose emerges from the cracked earth, symbolizing love surviving against all odds. The cracked ground is highly textured, with deep shadows and fiery highlights along the fissure’s edges. The background is solid black for easy background removal, ensuring a crisp, clean separation.

Soft, hand-painted brushstrokes add a traditional illustration feel, making it look like a professionally painted book cover rather than AI-generated art. The artwork is painted in the style of classic 1980s and 1990s romance novel covers, with warm, rich color tones and a slightly oil-painted effect.

The composition is centered on the earthquake fissure, making it the dominant focal point, with the couple visibly divided but still yearning for each other. The solid black background ensures the design remains sharp and easy to edit, with no stray shadows or unwanted textures.

High-quality, ultra-detailed, vintage romance illustration.
